THEATRE STAGES WELFARE SHOW

Wednesday Dec. 21 at 11 p. m. at The Cameron

Cameron's social welfare program for the month was climaxed today with announcement by Stanley Swift of the Swift Theatres that on Wednesday, December 21, beginning at eleven p. m. the Cameron Theatre will present a mid-night show for the benefit of the Christmas cheer fund for the Child Welfare organization.

The title of the picture is "You are Only Young Once," starring Louis Stone and Micky Rooney. This is a return engagement of the famous show which is one of a series of the Judge Hardy pictures.

Mr. Swift said that the entire proceeds from the picture would go to the Child Welfare fund and that no deductions would be made for any expense incident to staging the show.

The public in Cameron will recall another Judge Hardy picture with the title "Love Finds Andy Hardy" in which Mickey Rooney gave his greatest screen performance. The public is invited to patronize this show and to aid this worthy effort on the part of Mr. Swift and his fine theatre.

Stewart's Grocery Opens Christmas Sale of Food

Stewart's Grocery was leading out in a big way this week with a food sale that will carry through Christmas eve. The big store was stocked from floor to ceiling with new merchandise brought in for the big buying week and Mr. Stewart said that he believed he had made preparations for one of the largest week's of buying in the history of Cameron.

The merchandise to be sold in this sale will be of especial interest to Christmas shoppers and uniformly low prices will prevail throughout the store during this sale. It is the last mesage Mr. Stewart will have for buyers until after the first of the year and in this advertisement he has stressed both quality and price.

Whatley's Food Sale to Attract Many to Cameron

Food buyers were given a fine opportunity this week when the W. T. Whatley Grocery announced its pre-Christmas sale with a large stock of merchandise especially arranged for the Christmas business.

The store has been decorated and large quantities of special foods have been placed for the consideration of customers and the public and druing the next week this store will be a busy place in Cameron. The sale continues through to Christmas Day and while many bargains are to be found at the store, the business is stressing as always quality merchandise and on this basis has built up a large trade. W. T. Whatley, Jr., is in charge of the store this week while his father, W. T. Whatley, Sr., is down on the Texas border with a company of friends on a deer hunt.

"Down a Hill Road White With Snow Came Santa;" Citizens Bank is Host

Santa Claus emerging from his northern snow land to make his annual visit to Cameron found a choice background for colorful grandeur in Citizens National Bank. The Spirit of Christmas as it relates to St. Nicholas was never better portrayed than in the 1938 decorations at Citizens National Bank. With a gorgeous background of a snow white hill with green trees, down a path came Santa Claus driving his white reindeer hitched to a sleigh loaded with toys for the children.

This breathtaking scene of Christmas grandeur is a tribute to Mr. Oxsheer Smith, president of the bank who each year has contributed much to the spirit of the season by arranging decorations in his modern banking room that not only invite the attention of the people of this county but is visited by people from over the state including artists who wish to see the decorations. Sharing with the bank officials in this tribute of Yuletide decorations is Glass the Florist. Mr. and Mrs. Lester Glass each year decorate the bank and this year have achieved somthing good enough to bring visiting florists from Dallas and other places to stand in wonder at the spectacle which for sheer beauty and arresting influence

Tyson Tells Rotary About Government

Cameron's credit standing is the best of any city in Texas, declared Dan Tyson, city secretary and treasurer who delivered an address before the Cameron Rotary Club on Wednesday in which he discussed, for the information of the Rotarians, the city government. Mr. Tyson read extracts from a letter in which a widely known financial firm said that due to Cameron's low bonded debt and taxable values, the city is the most desirable credit risk among all Texas municipalities.

Mr. Tyson was introduced by Don Weir who was toastmaster for the day by appointment of Dr. Clifford Swift, president. Mr. Tyson, an eloquent speaker, prefaced his remarks on the government of the city by commending the Rotarians for their progressive service to Cameron in bringing a Rotary Club to this section. He said it was a rare privilege to be a member of a Rotary Club and expressed his appreciation for the opportunity of talking infor-

MILAM FARMERS VOTE FOR CONTROL

Milam county's farm income was headed for another low level in 1939 as a result of a overwhelming vote throughout the cotton states on last Saturday in which the farmers approved the government program for control of marketing quotas.

The vote in Milam county was decisive although considerable headway was made in opposition to government control of farms when 339 farmers voted against the government program. The vote was more than a thousand short of the total cast in March 1938. The total vote cast for the government program on last Saturday was 1509, thus giving a majority of almost five to one. The percentage of approval is approximately 82 per cent while in 1938 the percentage of approval was 90 per cent. In the election held in 1938 a total of 3219 votes were cast, 2894 voting for the acreage control by law and 325 against.

Over the entire cotton growing states the percentage of approval was approximately the same ration as given in Milam county and AAA officials were rejoicing in Washington over the apparent subjugation of independence of the American farms. The total farm income for Milam county for 1939 will be approximately the same as 1938 with government benefits mounting to less than $400,-000.

Miss Katherine Wilson, who will succeed Miss Ada Mae Hinman as assistant home demonstration agent here, will arrive in Cameron next week. Miss Wilson is a graduate of Baylor College and has been employed as a teacher in the McGregor school.

Renewal of Beer Licenses Due

On December 31, 1938, approximately 3,000 beer licenses and wine and beer retailer permits will expire and no person whose license or permit expires on that date may lawfully operate on or after January 1, 1939, without having obtained a renewal license or permit, it was officially announced here this week by Bert Ford, adminstrator of the Texas Liquor Control Board of Austin.

Expiration notices have been mailed from the office of the Texas Liquor Control Board to every licensee or permitee whose license expires on that date. The law provides that application for renewal may be made at any time within thirty days prior to the expiration of the license or permit and renewal applications must be submitted at the office of Bill Alex Bonds, Milam county tax assessor and collector within this allotted time.

Mr. Bonds urges that every applicant present his renewal application to the tax collector's office at the earliest possible date, as the application must be forwarded from the tax collector's office to the the office of the Texas Liquor Control Board where the licenses will be issued.

Cases Set for District Court Here

The following cases have been scheduled for District Court for Thursday: State of Texas vs. Fuentes, charged with possession of marihuana; Katie James, charged with arson; G. W. Jenkins, charged with burglary; F. A. Simonds, charged with arson and Lohse and Lewis charged with burglary.

The case of John Meeks charged with murder was postponed until December 21. On December 22, the case of N. J. Kelley charged with forgery is scheduled.

H. F. Gohmert, of the local Gohmert's Variety Store, has been ill at his home here for the past week. Friends of Mr. Gohmert will be glad to know that he is improving.

BUYERS TO CROWD CITY

On the eve of Christmas week which opens Monday, Cameron business men were making preparations for the usual large volume of trade necessary to satisfying the demands of a people highly responsive to the spirit of giving.

Stocks of merchandise in the stores were up to standard and indications were that the volume of retail trade would be as large as could be expected under the present level of income. Restriction of major argricultural crops in the county has had a decided effect on business but with the spirit of Christmas in the air and the return of many students from colleges to reunite families for celebration of the holidays, Cameron was looking forward with eager anticipation to a good old fashioned Christmas. Church services were being arranged and various civic organizations were busy with their charity programs and the Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual Christmas tree on the night of December 22 to further increase the observance of Christmas. The city was colorful in holiday attire and people generally were entering into the spirit of the day.

New Grove Tourist Camp Opens Here

The Grove Tourist Park located in a scenic spot on highway 77 north of the city has been opened for business.

These courts were constructed by Jack Owings and are among the most modern to be found anywhere in Central Texas. The cabins are equipped with fine furniture, hot and cold water, and all conveniences.

Mr. Owings is a Cameron pioneer in developing the community. He was the first man to build a drive-in filling station in Cameron marking the end of the old curb service with gasoline pumps. In completing the Grove Tourist Camp, Mr. Owings has contributed much to the development of the community during the year. These camps will be widely advertised for tourist trade and during the coming summer should bring many travelers to Cameron.

W. D. Bigbee Resigns To Accept U. S. Government Position

To you grown-ups who, years ago believed with all your hearts in Santa Claus:

Now just suppose you were now a little girl and that you wanted ever so much, a new doll for Christmas; that your Dad and Mom had not even enough to buy food and wood and pay rent, much less help old Santa Claus. Think how disappointed you would be if you did not get that doll for Christmas.

Listen my friends, the K. of P., K. of C. and Masonic Lodges, The American Legion and Lions Club have gathered together for me enough fruit and candy, new clothing for all on the list they gave me to see and plenty of playthings for the boys, but I do need about seventy-five new dressed dolls for the girls on the list.

Will you go right away to one of the stores and buy a doll or two? Take them to Mrs. Copus' Specialty Shop and I will call for them there.

Thank you and Happy Christmas to you my grown-up boy and girl friends.

Young Friends.

Having three fine children of my own, and having been a kid myself, I think I know something of the problems of young people. Our programs directed toward greater safety on the highways have been only a part of the special messages to school children. Nothing has been more gratifying to me than the stream of letters which the Hillbilly Boys and I have received over the years from these youngsters, most of them telling us how much they enjoyed our programs and how they have come to feel that they are our friends.

And well have I known how sincere these expressions are. During the campaign for Governor, thousands of young people—many still below the voting age—worked like Tropans for our cause. These friends have pep and enthusisam, and they proved it in that fight. Many have written in asking what line of work they should enter, what they should do in life to succeed. To these ambitious young people I have ever been ready to offer what advice I could. From some of the school children's programs at the end of a school year I repeat some of this advice:

School is out in some places and soon will be in others. Many boys and girls are glad that school is out because they want to have fun, to just loaf and play and have a dandy good time, but there are a few ambitious boys and girls who can hardly wait for school to end because they want to get a job and be at work.

Don't Be a Sourpuss.

Nothing I can say will have much influence on you boys and girls. The ambitious and the thrifty will do something while the lazy and the indolent will never accomplish much. But to those of you who do want to get ahead in life, let me say a few words, because I know your biggest problem will be deciding what kind of work to take up.

Talk to your mothers and fathers. They can give you good advice. But regardless of what advice you get from whatever source, remember you will succeed better if you take up some line of work which you really enjoy. Work is play if you enjoy it. To me, sales work is enjoyable. To those of you who might find it likewise my suggestion is to become salesmen. It is never monotonous, because it deals with human nature. There is an alarming scarcity of good salesmen, and they will always be in big demand. At least think about this line of work which has no limit to its possibilities.

Don't be a sourpuss. Have confidence in your fellow man. I remember when I was a kid living in the country and walking to school each day, the town kids used to think us country boys were kind of green, And they would tell me the doggondest things. Maybe I was green, because I would believe them and I got into the habit of believing everything I heard.

And to this day that old habit of believing what other people tell me has stuck with me. Once in a while I get fooled, but not very often. And I have found that it is more fun to believe and to be optimistic and to have faith in people generally even if you do get fooled every once in a while. You can never be happy if you are always suspicious of people and doubt everything you hear.

And that policy of believing other people has another effect. It turns you so thoroughly against untruthfulness that you become mightly careful of everything you say yourself. You never want to mislead anybody else. So that is the thought I want to leave to the school boys and girls this morning. Have faith in other people and make doubly sure that you say or do nothing that will cause anybody else to lose confidence in you.

There is a class not given in school, but important just the same, a class in the art of smiling. I expect you boys and girls think there are too many studies in school already. But what I am suggesting is the most practical subject in the world. A smile, you know, will get you farther in this world than knowledge of some Spanish explorer who camped on the banks of the Belano River in 1263 A. D. In school work and in life work later a smile will get you farther than a grouch.

It is easy to smile when you are sitting in a big, easy rocking chair eating an ice cream sundae and wathceing a funny clown perform, but it is not so easy when you stand in the sun and watch the Sheriff haul the furniture back to the installment store while your children are crying for food. But even then a smile will make your friends think you have pulled a joke on the furniture man.

I saw a fellow the other day who was about to get a splendid promotion. But the boss remembered that this fellow never smiled, and as he wanted someone who could greet the customers with a smile, he had to pass him up. He left that sour, solemn brother in the back office where nobody would see him, although he was smart and capable. So I say to you boys and girls, while you are young cultivate the habit of smiling. Get smiles wrinkled on your face. It will cause the teacher to give you better grades. It will get you the best job. A good smile is worth a million dollars, and it never costs a dime.

Second-Hand Toy Business Booms Again

Discarded Playthings Provide Yule Cheer for Unfortunate

Throughout America thousands of public spirited citizens are participating in a toy industry from which they make no money, but will bring them a greater payment in satisfaction on Christmas morning.

That industry is the second-hand toy business, an enterprise that flourishes in towns and cities throughout the country each November and December. In high school manual training rooms, fire stations, and service club headquarters, discarded playthings are being repaired and repainted.

In some of these workshops new toys are being fashioned by ingenious amateurs. But in all of them, busy merchants and professional men are devoting their spare time to helping Santa Claus make sure he has gifts for every youngster on Christmas eve.

Dolls Get New Dresses.

Dolls which faced dusty abandonment through their later years are being rejuvenated. Cleaning and new paint have brought back the first flush of youth to their shining cheeks and the early sparkle to their obediently open or closed eyes. New dresses have added much to their attractiveness.

There is new fire in the big glass eyes of many a rocking horse, too, the long legs of whose original owner would now dangle on the floor. With new paint throwing his proud mane into brighter relief, he's as rollicking a steed prancing along the road to romance as ever he was.

The procedure of these community volunteer organizations varies from city to city. In larger towns, policemen and firemen are rejuvenating toys collected by Boy and Girl Scouts. Smaller communities depend on volunteer co-operation. Women make new dresses for dolls and men repair the toys.

Christmas baskets for unfortunates will have many presents other than toys. Each year thousands of communities find means of placing candy, nuts, fruit—and often all the makings for a Christmas dinner—in each basket. Shoes, stockings, mittens and other apparel also find a ready market.

When Yule Carol Stilled War Guns On Battle Front

NORFOLK, VA.—Rev. J. Sutherland-Watt of Norfolk tells how the strains of "Silent Night, Holy Night," sweeping gently across a battlefield in two languages, quieted guns in front-line trenches of the greatest war on earth for a Christmas celebration.

It was Christmas eve, 1914, between Armentiers and Arras, while Gordon Highlanders huddled in trenches, when somebody remembered the day.

"Jim, let's sing," one said to Private Sutherland-Watt.

Jim pleaded off, but someone else started "Silent Night, Holy Night," and soon Jim and the whole Scot regiment had joined in.

When the last refrain subsided, from the opposite trenches arose other voices—attuned in "Stille Nacht." Then all night long Christmas carols rang from trench to trench in strange tongues while cannon and flares from other sectors lit the sky.

At the customary "zero" hour, the British soldiers saw gray-clad figures making their way out of the opposite trenches. A few shots were fired. Then it was seen that the Germans carried no arms. Scots leaped from their trenches, likewise unarmed, only to be greeted back.

Anti-Communist Flags Replace Beloved Santa In Japan's Christmas

TOKYO.—Santa Claus has been banished from Japan, much to the sorrow of thousands of boys and girls who had come to love the patron saint of Christmas. A home ministry ordinance now forbids the usual festival manner of celebrating. Japan, although not a Christian nation, has been celebrating the day with growing ardor annually, with department stores featuring Santa Clauses similar to the American variety. But now shopkeepers have announced that instead of the usual decorations their establishments will display Japanese, German and Italian flags, representing the three leading anti-communist nations.

Christmas All Year!

CHRISTMAS, FLA.—There's nary a snowflake in this southern community but it's the only town in America that has a "Christmas" atmosphere the year around. Each Yuletide season cards and packages come from all parts of the word to be stamped and mailed again by "Mrs. Santa Claus," otherwise known as Postmistress Juanita S. Tucker. The post office was established June 27, 1892. Offices at Christmas, Ky., and Christmas, Ariz., have been abandoned.

Utah, Indian Name

Utah, it has generally been assumed, was taken directly from the tribal name, the Utes, of the aboriginals who originally lived in the territory. It was not their own name for themselves, but was applied to them by the Navajos and Apaches. The term is derived directly from the word for "upper" and means "the upper people," or "hill-dwellers." It was probably almost the direct equivalent to the English term, "highlanders," applied to people dwelling in the Scotch mountains.

Spies During World War

During the World war, the British Intelligence service, through a simple trick, finished the career of a clever Turkish spy. Securing his secret address in Constantinople, says Collier's Weekly, the service in London sent him $150 in cash in a plain envelope that, when intercepted by the Turkish censor, was considered to be "sufficient evidence" of his dealing with the enemy. Consequently he was executed.

The Toleration Act

The Toleration act was an act passed in 1689, during the reign of William and Mary, by which Protestant dissenters from the Church of England were given the legal right to worship publicly in their own chapels. They were, however, bound to take the oaths of supremacy and allegiance and to repudiate the doctrine of substantiation.

Mule Progeny of Female Horse

A mule is the progeny of a female horse, or mare, and a male or "Jack" ass. The asses used for this purpose are of the large Spanish or French breeds. But mules themselves cannot breed. For certain work mules are better than horses. For their size, they are stronger, freer from disease, and less costly to feed.

HE KNOWS HOW

Humble Station salesmen are selected men who have been carefully trained to give your car the care it needs to keep it running right and looking good. The service they render is so competent that many Texas motorists have shifted the care of their cars to Humble's shoulders; they depend on the Humble stations in their neighborhoods to call them when it's time to wash and lubricate their cars, to change oil, to check batteries and tires.

Equipped with every modern facility for servicing your car, Humble stations are truly service stations. See for yourself. Let a Humble Station wash your car, lubricate it, change the oil. Next time you need battery water, or air in your tires, stop at the Humble sign. That's the best way we know to show you how complete, how thoroughly satisfactory, Humble service really is . . . One stop, and the next thing you know, you, too, will be shifting the care of your car to Humble's shoulders—like thousands of other Texans, you'll have the Humble habit.

METHODIST CHURCH

A warm welcome awaits you at the Methodist Church Sunday.

Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith; prove you own selves, will be the sermon subject at 11 a. m.

At 7:30 p. m. a message on the Folly of Neglect. The minister, Rev. A. J. McCary, will preach at both hours. The Good Spirit calls to worship, but it is left to the individual to answer the call. Standing on the side line next Sunday morning and evening one can see tens of thousands throughout the world on their way to worship the Father in the name of His Son whose annievrsary we are already celebrating, while other tens of thousands will either sleep late, or rise to go other places or to give this Holy Day to business interests. Then Jesus told of another class in the story of the Man who Buried his talent—just plain spritual laziness. The Good Spirit calls to worship, but the individual takes down the "receiver" and "Yes?" "Sure, I'll be there;" or, "No, I'm sorry, Master, but I can't be there today. Again, have you heard the Methodist Choir sing? If not, you have missed a blessing. Come out Sunday morning and evening and have your soul refreshed.

Another blessing awaits you, the privilege of contributing to the Methodist Orphan's Home where 403 empty stocking and empty stomachs are depending on the free-will-offerings of Christian people throughout the stato. Remember Sunday is the day for ths annual gift to these fatherless and motherless children. Bring your money and play Santa Claus for them. The Methodist church extends greetings and good wishes to all of the churches and to all of the people of our city with prayer for a joyous and profitable Christmas.

A. J. McCary, Pastor.

Santa Claus

has never been equaled in Texas.

It is interesting to note the magnitude of these decorations. As one enters the lobby of the bank, the scene overwhelms him. The decoration is so arranged as to give the appearance of great distance with Santa Claus emerging from slight shadows along the trail to round a small hillside with his dashing out fit swinging again upward to a church located on a hillside and above it a lighted cross. Dotting the hillside are green trees with lights and in the background are the stars of a glorious night blended into harmony with the white Christmas. The reindeer, said Mrs. Glass are made from paper mache and are flocked, a process similiar to painting. The deer are five feet one-half inches high. The sleigh is made from beaver board and flocked also, the coloring effect being diamond dust and in red. The snow scene is made of Texas cotton also flocked or sprayed with the special preparation to intensify the snow. Mrs. Glass said that the material used in flocking is made from ground silk.

In the background and coming into soft brilliance can be seen a Christmas eve moon achieved by a lighting effect. The timber used for the hillside foliage is native cedar. Santa is making his way to a country church standing immaculate on a silent hillside above its roof a white satin cross with red light and a soft light is pouring from the windows of the church to spill its warmth on the snow banked above the place of worship. By special arrangement, at intervals comes strains of music from the church dedicated to old familiar hymns sung by Milam county church folks for more than a century.

The garland above the church is made of Norwegian Lichan and autumn oak. Inside the church is a Christmas tree typical of rural observance of the great event of Christmas. Towering amid this spectacle of Christmas decorations stands the gigantic figure of Santa Claus, twelve and one-half feet high. The sleigh is eight feet long and five feel high. There are three reindeer, snow-white with harness of scarlet satin.

Mr. and Mrs. Glass worked for more than two weeks to make the material put into these decorations and to complete the work. It was necessary to construct a large platform, the full width of the banking room, the inside walls of which are twenty-eight feet high. The decorations begin at a height of about six feet and gradually slope upward to the height of approximately eighteen feet giving the appearance of an entire hillside.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Fanning of Cameron attended a Christmas program presented in the auditorium of Mary Hardin-Baylor College on last Sunday.

Christmas Tree

begin promptly at 7:00 o'clock on Thursday night, December 22, and Santa Claus will be on hand to play his part in the entertainment and to present every child under twelve years of age with a bag of candy, fruit and nuts.

The program will feature Christmas carols led by F. E. Woodruff in which the children will join and a short talk by Judge Graham Gillis. Emory B. Camp will be in charge of the program which will be short and will precede the distribution of the gifts.

The home economics department of Yoe High School will assist in preparing the 2500 bags to be given away, and the American Legion will distribute them to the children as they line up in long rows at the conclusion of the program.

A loud speaker, furnished through the courtesy of F. G. Blake of the Coca Cola Bottling Company, will be used to present the program advantageously to the crowd. The committee on arrangements includes Emory Camp, president, L. F. Gohmert, Leland Green, F. E. Woodruff, E. A. Perrin, B. F. Reichert and Guy T. Newton, and they report that every organization in the city which they contacted, contributed funds to make this community Christmas tree possible.

Children in Milam county under the age of twelve years are especially invited to be present to receive their bag of candy, fruit and nuts.

Tyson

mally with neighbors and friends.

Discuss Cameron's financial standing, and the operation of the city government, Mr. Tyson took up the tax rate and explained its apportionment to various departments of the government, including the school which he says receives seventy-five cents out of the 2.25 total tax rate, the remainder going for city purposes and the payment of bonded debts. The city of Cameron owes in bonded debts only slightly over $140,000 and has assets in taxable values in excess of $3,000,000. "If you had an industry that owed only $140,000 with assets totaling more than $3,000,000 you would consider it a valuable business and I think that the citizens of Cameron should be proud that their city has such a high standing in financial circles and its accounts in such fine condition."

Mr. Tyson paid tribute to J. B. White, former Mayor of Cameron, and also at one time a member of the Board of Aldermen, for his service to the city. During his administration the city made a number of major improvements including the paving of streets, the construction of the Ada Henderson school, the enactment of sanitary laws, and the construction of the disposal plant and other major inmprovements.

Mr. Tyson is regarded as the best informed citizen in Cameron on municipal affairs. He enjoys the esteem of the citizenship and because of his knowledge, he was appointed secretary and treasurer several years ago to succeed the late J. C. Joseph. One of the first acts of Mr. Tyson's administration was the preparation of a budget, thus giving the city its first financial program to comply with the statutes and this system has worked out well, so much so that the city has been able to meet all of its obligations and has large balances in its sinking funds in the bank. Mr. Tyson explained the operation of the government, how taxes are levied and collected and how they are distributed, bringing to the business men a much appreciated insight into the operating details of the city government.

In closing his address, Mr. Tyson drew long applause from the audience in a touching expression of thanks and appreciation and wished each one a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

On next Wednesday night Rotarians will be host to the Cameron firemen at a banquet in the dining room of Mrs. Cato's Cafe.

Deputy Superintendent Inspects Rural Schools

W. E. Driskill of Bryan, Deputy State Superintendent of the 20th District was here last week visiting the schools of rural Milam county. A total of 31 schools were visited and recommendations for improvement were made by Mr. Driskill.

Each school was thoroughly inspected and a list of the necessary equipment needed by each in order to obtain state aid, was listed. To arrive at the figure totaling the amount of teacher aid each school should receive, Mr. Driskill subtracted the total receipts of the school from the recommended expenditures for needed improvements which left the amount of teacher aid the school should receive.

" Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ. Scintists, on Sunday, December 18.

The Golden Text is: "Hearken unto me, O Jacob and Isreal, my called; I am he; I am the first, I also am the last. Mine hand also hath laid the foundation of the earth, and my right hand hath spanned the heavens" (Isaiah 48:12,13.)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made" (John 1:3.)

NEW OUTLOOK

By Gregg Alexander

"A glorious New Year's day, isn't it?" the young man asked.

Molly aroused herself. She had noticed this attractive young man on the boat, of course. Molly had avoided him, however. If she hadn't been so absorbed with her own gloomy thoughts he wouldn't have gotten near enough to speak.

"Yes, it is," she replied coldly. But as she looked up into his merry face, her own sad countenance thawed.

"Gee, but you are swell looking when you smile," he blurted out. "I've been wondering how you'd look with a smile on that pretty face."

Molly couldn't help but laugh. He sounded like a child. Then she grew sober.

"If you knew what makes me sad: my eyesight going, my fiance deciding he didn't want a blind wife," —she started. But Jack stopped her.

A NEW YEAR STORY

"Start the New Year thinking of what you have, not pitying yourself. You have money to travel."

"Surely. Money!" Molly agreed disgustedly.

"More than ordinary good looks. Education, I should judge. A fair amount of charm. I can't judge that accurately, for you've kept it shut off." His tone was so droll that Molly had to laugh.

"Well, you do paint rather a strong picture, Mr. Pollyanna. You have your fair share of charm and good looks too," she responded, with a provocative smile.

"Stop it, stop it," Jack pleaded in mock alarm. "Turn it off, turn off the charm. I'm too susceptible."

"All right. Since you had the courage to tackle the glummest girl on board ship, maybe I'd better try making myself agreeable." Molly was still smiling, but there was a look of determination on her face.

"Sure thing. Be a good sport. Take life as it comes."

A trace of bitterness returned to Molly's tone as she said: "It's easy for you to talk, with health and good looks and everything to make life easy."

Jack laughed. "Lots you know about it. They told me five months ago I had six months to live. But I'm showing them they're mistaken. Aren't your eyes better?"

Molly looked at him in astonishment: "You mean it, really? And you so full of fun all the time? Oh, my eyes, you say. Yes, they really are better."

"I was sure of it. Well, I'm off to see the mate. His wife wants him to give up the sea and settle down on land. The idea is driving him nuts. So long, I'll be seeing you. Good luck, and Happy New Year!"

It's Open Season For Resolutions; Made Yours Yet?

CHICAGO.—It's again time for New Year's resolutions and psychologists have something to say about it.

"Humbug," is the comment of Dr. Robert N. McMurray, executive secretary of the Chicago Psychological corporation.

"He's wrong," answers Dr. George W. Crane, noted psychologist with Northwestern university.

Although most scientists admit the average resolution lives no longer than a May fly, they claim this old American habit does have merit. Dr. McMurray sees no more logic in using the first day of January for making resolutions than in the old southern custom of shooting off fireworks at Christmas, but he admits that people most meticulous about their obligations are more likely to keep New Year's promises.

"A good resolution," he says, "becomes a compromise solution to the conscience conflict. The man who makes one says to himself, 'I will make a resolution not to do this or that which I should not during the forthcoming year.' Although it's not the same as refraining from such actions, it does have some value in quieting the conscience's reproaches."

But Dr. Crane is more hopeful.

"It is wise to make resolutions," he says, "since the first step in progress of any sort consists of formulating the plans."

For those without sins to expiate, he suggests the following ideas:

"Pay a sincere compliment to your wife or husband, your children or neighbors.

"Don't wait for death to tear the selfishness from your eyes, after which, in remorse, you heap extra bouquets on the coffin.

"Resolve now to pay at least three sincere compliments every day in 1939."

An outstanding event on the social calendar last week was the Open-House reception tendered by the ladies of the Missionary Society of the First Methodist church at the parsonage, beginning in the afternoon at three, and until five o'clock, then again in the evening from seven to ten o'clock. Beautiful fall flowers shed beauty and fragrance throughout the reception rooms and dining-room. Mrs. Lena Baskin greeted the guests at the door in the afternoon, conducted them to the receiving line where the president of the Missionary society introduced them to the new pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. A. J. McCary. Mrs. John Bowman conducted guests to the dining room where Mrs. C. N. Green and Mrs. J. W. Kemp poured tea and coffee from the dainty decorated dining room table. Assisting in the dining room were: Mrs. H. N. Tate, Miss Lillian Mondrik, Mesdames Lester Williams, Leland Green, Jr., and Mrs. John Batte. Open house in the evening found many visitors, who were greeted at the portals by Mrs. W. A. Bonds, conducting them to the receiving line where Mrs. W. T. Whatley introduced them to the honorees, Rev. and Mrs. A. J. McCary. There were also in the line, the new Presiding Elder of Marlin, Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Lokey; Mr. and Mrs. Niley Smith and Mrs. Lee Batte. Mrs. A. J. Triggs had charge of the program for the evening and presented those taking part. Mrs. Eber Flinn gave several attractive readings; Mrs. Winnie Wittliff favored the assembly with several negro spiritual songs, accompanied by Mrs. Guy Haynes. Miss Virginia Weems rendered a voice number with Miss Shirley Horstmann at the piano. Mrs. W. E. Gaither invited guests to the dining room where Mrs. Jeff T. New Year's Is Big Event In Horse Racing Circles

There's a big birthday party in horse racing circles on New Year's day. Twelve thousand thoroughbreds in training, in common with all other horses, become a year older.

To old timers like Man o' War, celebrating his twenty-second birthday in old Kentucky, the day doesn't mean much. But to approximately 5,000 yearlings and at least half that many two-year-olds, it marks the turning point of their careers.

Yearlings become eligible to appear under colors for the first time, while the juvenile racers join the rich three-year-old ranks, ready for participation in such moneyed events as the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and the Belmont.

A WARNING

One Drink May Lead to Another, So Be Careful New Year's Eve!

Here's a graphic warning about your New Year's Eve celebration. Congenial drinks have a habit of following each other in insidious sucession.

It's bad enough to risk your own life by driving after drinking, but how about the other lives that are thereby endangered? Gasoline and liquor don't mix!

Disaster stalks the highways each New Year's Eve because of drinking drivers. Won't you do your part to combat this needless slaughter? If you must drink, leave your car at home or let some one else do the driving!

Week End Revival at Yarrellton Church

A week end revival will be conducted at the Yarrellton Baptist Church during the coming week end, Friday night, December 16, through Sunday night, December 18.

Those to bring the messages include Rev. Paul B. Leath, Baylor University student and pastor of the Milano Baptist Church, who will play the piano, sing and conduct the preaching service on Friday night; George J. Mason, secretary and treasurer of the Baptist Foundation of Texas and officially connected with the Baptist General Convention of Texas for more than eighteen years, who will speak on Sunday morning; and the pastor, Rev. Joseph B. Underwood, who will conduct the services Saturday night and Sunday night.

Mr. Mason, who will conduct the services on Sunday morning, is an outstanding Baptist Layman in Texas ranks and will have an inspirational message for all who hear him. Everyone is invited to attend these services. Visitors are most cordially welcomed.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Neblett of Waco visited in the home of Judge and Mrs. Jeff T. Kemp on Sunday.

Court House Roof Will Not Be Restored

Milam County's historic court house with its medevial architecture will be lost to the citizens of Milam County insofar as its outline is fixed for the future, it became known here this week when the statue of justice was hauled down from the dome.

The roof structure will not be restored to its original architectural design. Instead the court house will have a flat roof made of cement but gable construction similar to a portion of the present roof will be made and on each corner of the building an electric clock will tell the time of day and the same sound system will be used so that the familiar tolling which for almost half a century has filled the town with melody on each recurring hour, will be preserved for the people.

The building will be made much stronger as a result of the new roof and the commissioners' court made known its intention to consider in the future additional stories to be used for jail purposes.

Class A Basketball Schedule is Announced

For their first game on the home court, the Yoe High basketball teams, both A and B, will meet the strong Hearne Eagles here on next Tuesday night. The first game is called for 7 and admission is ten cents and fifteen cents. The initial game for the Yoemen was against Hearne there last Friday night when the boys lost a hard fought game. Raymond P. Bennett, who has charge of all basketball and coaches the A squad, has comparatively light and weak material, but decided improvement is expected when the boys have had a little more practice.

The Cameron B squad, coached by R. T. Patterson, Jr., also dropped the first game to Hearne in a game which was anybody's until the closing minutes of the last quarter. Both teams are anxious to avenge the Hearne defeat, so come and support these teams next Tuesday. Coaches Bennett and Patterson work daily with the boys and are giving unreservedly of time and effort to make of the material real ball clubs.

The B squad has no complete schedule as yet, but following is the Class A basketball schedule:

Jan. 13—Rockdale vs. Cameron at Rockdale.

Jan. 17—Cameron vs. Thorndale at Cameron.

Jan. 24—Rockdale vs. Cameron at Cameron.

Jan. 27—Cameron vs. Thorndale at Thorndale.

Jan 31—Rockdale vs. Thorndale at Rockdale.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Marks of Rogers celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Tuesday. They are former Milam county citizens. R. C. Sharp of Belmena is a brother to Mrs. Marks.

CITY IS READY ON WATER PURCHASE

The City of Cameron has informed the Community Public Service Company of Fort Worth that the Council is ready to purchase the water works in Cameron at the figure set by engineers who placed a value in excess of $171,000.00 on the plant. This action followed the recent election in which the property owners approved an issue of bonds in the sum of $180,000.00 for the purpose of buying the system.

The Community Public Service Co., will reject the offer and will notify the City of Cameron that its property in the city is not for sale and can not be purchased for the amount involved in the arbitrary value set on the holdings.

If the city wishes to attempt to enforce the franchise clause which gives Cameron an option to take over the water works, it will be necessary to go to court. The city, if it undertakes litigation, will file suit for a deed to the property and this action according to the utility company, will involve a long series of court battles. The water company has made it plain that they will resist any effort on the part of the City to confiscate its properties at a value not agreeable to the company.

The utility company has been involved in city politics for almost ten years. Three aldermen are to be elected in April and the proposal to buy the water works is expected to weigh heavily in this election. If negotiations are carried on as they have been nurtured in the past the matter may come up again in 1939 and if the city reaches an agreement with the water company on the value of the plant, another bond issue will be necessary. The bonds will bear interest at the rate of four per cent and are to be retired from the proceeds of the plant operation.

Mrs. Colonel Mayes, formerly of Cameron, but had moved to Colorado several years ago, died a short time ago in a hospital at Denver, Colorado. When in Cameron she and her late husband, owned oil holdings at Minerva. Mr Mayes died at Tulsa, Oklahoma, three years ago.

Church of Christ Plans Lecture Week

The Church of Christ of this city is making plans for a week's lectureship to be held here in January. The exact date and program will be announced later. This will be the first program of this nature ever sponsored by the Church of Christ here. The local minister, Manuel B. Hartley, states that he has secured the consent of a number of preachers to be presented on this program.

Those who will take part on this program are Robert Le Croix of Coolidge, J. Willard Morrow of Hillsboro, Hulen L. Jackson of San Saba, Flavil Yeakley of San Antonio, R. B. Sweet of of College Station, F. B. Shepheard of Bryan, Edgar Fuer of Goldthwaite, Alton Martin of Temple, R. J. Smith of Temple, Bill McCowin of Kennedy, Ira B. McFadin of Taylor and J. D. Boun of Temple.

Other announcements will be made regarding the completion of this program. Everyone is cordially invited to attend these lectures.

Mr. and Mrs W. B. Marks of Rogers observed their 50th wedding anniversary on Tuesday. They greeted many of their friends who called between the hours of 2 to 6 in the afternoon to wish them many happy reurns of the day. Mr. Marks was reared in Milam county.

U. S. Government Runs Biggest Printing Plant In the World.

WASHINGTON. — The world's largest printing plant is operated in Washington by the United States government on a 24-hour schedule to print the vast amount of material for publication required by the centralization of government in Washington.

More than 70 daily, weekly, and monthly publications with a total circulation running into the millions are regularly printed in this huge government plant and distributed over the nation.

It has been estimated that a book the size of the Bible could be printed in the government printing office in 24 hours.

This printing and publishing division put out a total of 5,000,000,000 copies of various "job" publications during the last year.

Boss Is Printer.

This number is vastly in excess of quantities printed before the administration of President Roosevelt. This number does not include issues of regular monthly and weekly publications such as weather bulletins and copies of the Congressional Record.

At the head of this tremendous printing organization is a practical printer, Augustus E. Giegengack, whose title is public printer.

Giegengack gets every bit of printing desired by any department, bureau, or division of the government. The government divisions are required by law to hand over all of their printing to Giegengack and his printing office.

There is only one exception to this —the Supreme court—which for many generations has had its printing work done at a small private printing shop in the downtown section of Washington. There the decisions of the court are secretly and carefully set up in type and printed in such a way that no single typesetter or printer ever knows the contents of the decisions.

Employees of the government printing office likewise are bound to silence and secrecy, but details of confidential publications occasionally leak out through "sources" in the government printing office.

It Covers 22 Acres of Floor.

This printing establishment employs 5,500 printers, typesetters, photo-engravers, mechanics, clerks, and other workers. Its annual pay roll amounts to $12,000,000. It occupies 960,030 square feet of space, which is the equivalent of 22 acres.

The government printing office was established in 1861 and it has expanded rapidly ever since. It is by far the largest printing establishment in the world, with 406 typesetting and casting machines setting approximately 2,500,000,000 ems (units) of type annually. There are approximately 200 complete printing press units.

Among other things this printing office prints postal cards for the postoffice, 2,000,000,000 in a single year.

The printing office is geared to do high speed work as well as regulation printing. During sessions of congress the daily record of what happens is printed over night and is mailed and distributed in time for use the next morning.

The printing office charges each government division the cost price for printing. The plant makes extra charges for rush work.

Cascades Park Is Added To Nation's Playgrounds

SEATTLE, WASH.—To the nation's sylvan playgrounds will be added 4,272 acres of primitive timberland in the snowclad Cascades, near Snoqualmie pass, as a result of acquisition of the area by the United States government.

Creation of the park, with its giant trees and singing icy mountain streams, will be a monument to the ceaseless work of J. C. Kuhns, assistant regional forester, United States forest service.

Kuhn was captivated by the enchanting region while supervisor of the Snoqualmie National forest and when destruction of virgin Douglas firs and cedars, hemlock, spruce and yew was threatened four years ago he headed a movement to save the timber.

Aided by Asahel Curtis, noted for his work in saving the state's trees and scenic beauty spots, and by numerous civic and conservation groups, Kuhn quietly negotiated for deeds to the land from private owners, the government giving property of equal value elsewhere in exchange.

Tale of Four Bottles Crew Cast Into Ocean

BOSTON.—Four sealed bottles cast overboard by the crew of the schooner Effie M. Morrissey in 1936 were picked up on the shores of Norway nearly two years later.

A bottle recovered at Hjelmsoy traveled 4,100 miles, one found at Flatanger, 3,500 miles, one at Vest Vaago, Lofoten islands, 3,700 miles and the fourth at Soro island, 4,000 miles.

Liechtenstein a Small Stamp Issuing Country

Liechtenstein is a small agricultural principality lying south of Lake Constance between Switzerland and the Austrian province of Germany. The original tongue of the region was Romansch, used by the Grisons of Switzerland, and perpetuated in many of the place names of Liechtenstein, notably the capital, Vaduz, and Samina, Gavadura, etc., observes a stamp authority in the Chicago Tribune.

This is one of the smallest independent stamp issuing countries in the world, being underrated only by San Marino and Monaco. In area it embraces somewhat less than 70 square miles and is about 12 miles in its greatest dimension. The state is composed of the county of Vaduz and the lordship of Schellenburg, both of which were in many hands before being purchased by the count of Hohenems in 1613.

The Liechtenstein family purchased Schellenburg in 1699 and Vaduz in 1713. In 1719 the two states were raised to the status of a principality in the Holy Roman empire. This ended in 1806 and Liechtenstein was independent until 1815, when it became a part of the German confederation. In 1866 it again regained its independent status.

From 1852 until the close of the World war, it was joined with Austria in customs, coinage, and postal matters and appeals from its highest court at Vaduz were taken to the prince's court in Vienna.

Sunken Treasures Along The Shores of Trinidad

At the bottom of the Gulf of Pearls, now called the Gulf of Paria, lie the fortunes in gold and silver lost when Admiral Apocada set fire to his ships in 1797 so that they could not be captured by the British, with whom Spain was at war at the time.

Blackbeard the pirate burned many a ship in this gulf—all of them taking gold and silver to the bottom of the bay. These fortunes lie beneath the waves somewhere between Port of Spain and San Fernando, according to a writer in the Boston Herald.

It is believed by many that Admiral Apocada carried the treasure with him when he and his men escaped to the shore, and that it was buried there in the soft sand banks between Port of Spain and San Fernando.

The superstitious Trinidadians are afraid to seek this buried riches. They believe that the souls of the men who dug the holes still guard the spots. These men, as was the rule of the day, were killed as soon as the treasure was placed in the holes and were thrown in after it by the men who bade them dig it.

Bad luck, it is believed, will follow anv one who seeks this buried gold and silver, thus disturbing the souls supposed to be guarding it. Fearing misfortune, Trinidadians hesitate before pushing a spade into the sand.

Fateful Meeting

By KATHRINE EDELMAN

IN THE graying dusk of a December afternoon the slowly moving figure seemed almost a part of the landscape. Half a dozen cars whizzed by but no one stopped to offer him a lift or ask where he was going. If the Spirit of Christmas, of kindness, was abroad, it was surely passing him up.

Ten minutes more of plodding through the chill, darkening air, and another car came roaring down the road, passing him by as the others had done. The grim lines around his mouth grew deeper, then he heard a loud grinding of brakes.

"Almost passed you up," a gay voice cried.

"Pretty fine of you to stop for an old man." He shuffled into the vacant seat as he spoke.

"Oh, that's nothing," the gay voice was a bit embarrassed. "But I did almost pass you up. With this Christmas business, and the rush and hurry, one could pass up their own mother."

"I like to hear you say that. It's what I've always believed. The fact is, I was making a bit of a test today—had a bet with a friend about it. What's your name?"

"The name is Tod Jenkins. I'm headed for St. Louis—going home to spend Christmas with mother. I graduated in engineering last June."

"An interesting story." Tod turned to look at the old man as he spoke. He almost swung the car off the slab. "Why—why you look years and years younger than I thought!"

A hearty laugh sounded against the sharply rising wind. The man was speaking again. "I'm not so old, Tod," he said slowly; "I'm a long way from the old fellow you were kind enough to pick up. Yesterday we had an argument at the club. I made a bet with a fellow that I wouldn't have to walk an hour before I would find the Spirit of Christmas. It was rather a crazy thing to do, but I happen to be rather an eccentric scientist. My name is Perry Birch."

"Perry Birch!" Tod's eyes widened in astonishment, and his foot went off the accelerator, bringing the car almost to a standstill before he went on. "Why—why," he stammered, "I've been wanting to meet you all my life. I've read everything you've written—studied your methods and work for years. In fact," his voice grew more embarrassed, "I've been hoping that some day I might follow in your footsteps. The biggest wish of my life is to become a scientist like you!"

Kay Francis Gives Great Performance in "My Bill" Here Tuesday-Wednesday

"My Bill," with Kay Francis, Bonita Granville, Anita Louise, Bobby Jordan and Dickie Moore heading the cast, has been booked as the next attraction for the Cameron Theatre, where it will open Tuesday. "My Bill" was adapted from Tom Barry's stage play, "Courage."

Sacrificing that intangible asset generally termed glamour, which has heretofore been the bulwark of her career, Kay Francis has taken the opportunity presented by this picture to prove that she is, first and foremost, an accomplished actress.

She has dared what few motion picture actresses in her position would consent to do—that is, to play a woman who is older than her real self and is the mother of four children, of whom the eldest is supposed to be sixteen years of age.

In the story Miss Francis is a widow, who has just finished running through the inheritance left by her socially prominent husband. In desperate straits, she borrows money from a banker who was her childhood sweetheart. This causes scandal, and her eldest three children leave her and go to live with a wealthy aunt.

Only little Bill (Dickie Moore) remains with his mother, but, small as he is, he proves to be a real bulwark in time of need.

Then, it is the little fellow who reunites the family as a Mother's Day gift to Kay, and, as the story ends, not only is the family reunited but the town gossips' tongues are to be silenced by Kay's marriage to her childhood sweetheart.

The screen play was written by Vincent Sherman and Robertson White, and the production was directed by John Farrow.

Midget's Condition Due To Affliction of Glands

Midgets are not dwarfs. A dwarf has the torso of a normal-sized person. Heads are broader at the top than the jaw and there is a deep indentation at the bridge of the nose. Legs are short, especially the thighs, and the pelvic region tilts forward. They are susceptible to heart trouble, which the midget is not.

Midgets are people with bodily proportions of normal childhood except that their limbs are shorter in proportion to their trunks. Cheeks are fair with little or no hair and there is more than a normal deposit of fat in cheeks, hips or waist, or in all three. They are extremely youthful looking, especially the younger ones. This is due to the fact that they have a dormant period between 6 and 12 which curtails their development.

Midgets may appear in any family since their condition is due to non-functioning glands, according to Harlowe R. Hoyt in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. When their growth first ceases, parents as a rule seek to bolster them with medicines. Sometimes they succeed to the extent of an inch or two, in which event they frequently ruin their child's opportunity to make a living. Four feet is the limit in height of exhibition midgets.

About 22 per cent of all midgets marry. Of these, about half marry other midgets and the remainder normal people. Of all the midgets who marry, only 41 per cent have children. Midget women who have children have normal-sized babies—normal at birth and normal as adults. No midget woman has given birth to a child without a Caesarian operation, necessitated by the small pelvis.

Indian Once Had Right To Plot He Cultivated

In an Indian community prior to the discovery of America, and during early colonial times, no individual owned land, but the right of each to the plot which he cultivated was respected. A man's weapons were his own, but generally the tools, and often the food, and among the tribes of the plains even the tepee belonged to the women. Personal belongings were often buried with their owner, that their souls might accompany him to the future home. Remaining property was distributed in the tribe or bestowed upon heirs.

McNicholls' "The Amerindians" says that the conditions of land tenure obtaining in America upon the arrival of the Europeans was such that the view was held by them that there was no occasion to bother about acquiring title from the natives. "It was convenient for the colonists to conclude that the Indian right itself was but imperfectly and partially secured. It was convenient also for the colonists to conclude that neither tribes nor individual Indians were clothed with the requisite authority to enable them to make perfect conveyances of their rights or claims."

How Ants Store Honey

Bees store their honey in cells manufactured by themselves; but in Mexico and the southwestern United States there is an ant which stores its honey—in other ants.

Many species of ants collect honey-dew, store it in their crops and, on returning to their nests, feed their brood or other members of the colony by disgorging the sweet liquid. The Mexican honey ant, however, has gone one better in organizing food stores, says Pearson's London Weekly. In each nest of this species there is a class of workers, known as "repletes," the abdomens of which are so tremendously swollen that they are veritable honey pots. The "repletes" never leave the nest. They stay there and the honey dew is fed to them by another class of workers which go out to forage for it. During the winter, when other members of the community wish to be fed, the "replete" disgorges some of its store. It is a living barrel of stored-up food.

Why Fish Are Dumb

Fish are plain dumb because they are low in the evolutionary scale, asserts a writer in the Los Angeles Times. Fish are the most primitive of the vertebrates, only one step beyond the Crustacea. All our data point to the conclusion that intelligence is an evolutionary development, and that the forms later in time in developing have more of it. A fish, therefore, is extremely unlikely to be smart as a newt, a newt as a frog, a frog as a lizard, a lizard as a snake or a bird; and all the mammals are smarter, have bigger (proportionally) and better developed brains than the cold-blooded animals.

Early Lecturers' Fees

Louis J. Alber says in the Commentator: "In 1831 Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote: 'I am willing to come to Waltham on the date you suggest and lecture to your Lyceum for the $5 fee you offer, but I think you should also give me four quarts of oats for my horse.' Daniel Webster was the first lecturer to receive a fee of $100; Abraham Lincoln lectured at Cooper Union for $200, and in 1880 Henry Ward Beecher was paid the first known fee of $1,000. After finding Livingstone in Africa, Henry M. Stanley received $100,000 and all expenses for a hundred lectures."

GRETNA GREEN HAS TWO BLACKSMITHS TO MARRY ELOPERS

For the First Time Competition Enters Into Scotland's Marriage Mart.

Glasgow. — Scotland's Gretna Green now has two blacksmiths ready and willing to perform marriages over their respective anvils.

The existence of the second smithy was revealed recently by the elopement of a youthful English couple, Miss Audrey Patricia Smith, sixteen years old, of Clacton-on-Sea, and Sidney Swan, twenty-five years old, also of Clacton-on-Sea.

They were married over the anvil at Gretna hall, an inn not more than 100 yards from the blacksmith's shop where Richard Rennison, until now undisputed blacksmith of Gretna, has celebrated hundreds of weddings.

The opposition smithy, complete with anvil and bellows, was opened only recently by David McIntosh, the innkeeper who performed the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Swan.

Both blacksmiths eagerly put forward a claim that their "forge" is the original.

Could Use the Money.

"I decided only a short time ago to reopen my smithy and start marrying people," declared Mr. McIntosh.

"Many couples had come to Gretna hall to be married, and it seemed foolish to turn away good money. I charge a guinea ($5.11) for the marriage and 2 shillings 6 pence (60 cents) if I supply witnesses.

"My own opinion is that the marriages we perform will ultimately be abolished, but before then I hope to have a long and successful run."

Mr. Rennison, however, is not worrying about any opposition.

"My business is built on a solid foundation and is well organized," he commented. "When Mr. McIntosh took over the hotel he had no intention of marrying any one. Now his blacksmith's shop is almost a replica of my own."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Swan, on their honeymoon at Perth in Scotland, talked of their elopment as a grand adventure. Mrs. Swan ran away from the hotel where she lived with her grandmother.

"I stuffed some clothes into my pockets, packed some personal letters in a chocolate box, and tucked it under my arm—and walked," she related.

Grannie Was Suspicious.

"I was determined to get away. Grannie was suspicious, but I managed it."

Mr. Swan slipped a protective arm about his bride.

"We left Clacton in my car," he said, "to visit my sister, Mrs. J. J. Cook of South Chingford, Essex. Instead of going there, however, we took the train from Euston.

"About 10 o'clock we arrived at Gretna and when we reached the smithy the place was closed. We were told that Mr. McIntosh was in Carlisle at a pantomime. We decided to wait.

"Mr. McIntosh arrived shortly after 11 o'clock. 'I have a suspicion what you are both here for at this late hour,' he beamed.

"We agreed we wanted to be married.

"The ceremony was performed over the anvil, the only light being an electric flashlight which Mr. McIntosh held in his hand, casting a fantastic light over the dark room."

Wig Clipped as He Sleeps; Sues Barber for $5,075

New York.—Because he is laid open to embarrassing jibes, Ernst Reichner asked the Supreme court to award him $5,075, plus costs and disbursements, from Vincenzo Paglialonga, a barber.

In his complaint Reichner asserts that he is bald and wears a wig which cost him $75.

While wearing the wig on January 28 he sat in the defendant's barber chair and went to sleep.

When Reichner awakened, he declares, he found that the defendant had carelessly and negligently cut some of the hair from the plaintiff's toupee, thereby causing great damage and rendering it unfit for use and he is suffering the stigma of the bald headed man until he can get a new wig.

Oklahoman Is Arrested for Galloping His Team

Oklahoma City.—They had to go way back into the law books to find it, but Bud Clendon, forty-eight, faces a charge of violating an old statute, which makes a misdemeanor of "running any horse at an unusual rate of speed along any public road."

Jesse Gibson, constable, arrested Clendon, who, Gibson said, was bouncing along on a wagonload of lumber, pulled by two galloping horses.

Bull Victor Over Horse

Elizabeth, Ill.—A battle which raged for half an hour between a bull and a horse ended when the horse slumped to the ground with several ribs broken and its body a mass of wounds which necessitated its destruction.

Thirty Boys Born in One House

"The Great Waltz" At Cameron Theatre Thursday and Friday

When Benny Goodman swings a hot clarinet you really dance your way to town. But when your heart's full of love and the girl of your dreams is cuddled in your arms, isn't waltz music most expressive of your sentimental yearnings?

We believe that hearts beat faster in waltz time than in swing time—that couples love each other more tenderly while dancing to the former. What is your opinion? Tell us in a letter of 100 words, or less, whether or not you agree with us.

For the best letters, and reasons why, we will award 100 pairs of Guest Tickets to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayers latest musical romance. "The Great Waltz," starring Louise Rainer, Fernand Gravet, Miliza Korjus, Hugh Herbert, Lionel Atwill.

This latest special attraction is founded on the life of Johann Strauss II, known the world over as the Waltz King. His "Blue Danube" and other popular compositions are enduringly famous. Sweethearts have danced to his beloved compositions since time immemorial. "The Great Waltz" feautures some of his loveliest melodies played by big orchestras amidst the splendor of mangnificent court, grand ball and casino scenes.

This great attraction is coming to the Cameron Theatre for a two day's engamement beginning today. It's a real musical, romantic and dancing treat and we'd like to see your name among the winners of the contest. Mail your letter to "the Great Waltz" Editor, care of this paper.

Today's Program

An address by Mr. Dan Tyson on the City Government.

The individual Rotarian is the keystone or foundation block of this tremendous organization which we know as Rotary International. Rotary International may grow to unpredictable size. It may attain its ideal of extension by having every classification in every community filled by a worthy man. Yet, it will be the activity and initiative of the individual which will make Rotary worthy of a place among the really great organizations of all time.—Ken Gillespie, Governor of 185th District.

We are sorry to know that Rotarian Ernest Coffield has been ill. Here's to your early recovery, Ernest.

The Cameron Rotary Club will be host to the Cameron Volunteer Fire Department at a banquet on the night of Wednesday, December 21st at seven-thirty. This will take the place of the regular weekly luncheon.

The members of the Fire Department have shown considerable interest in their party and are preparing a splendid program for the occasion.

The attendance at our luncheon last week was good. The Temple Rotarians gave us an excellent program.

Four visiting Rotarians and four guests were present.

A visiting Rotarian told me that he had never been a 'joiner,' that he felt out of place in any organization. About eight years ago he joined the Rotary Club. He soon learned that the trouble had all been his own. During the past seven years he has not missed a meeting.

We here are all new in Rotary; yet I am convinced that constant attendance is the key to growing enthusiasm in Rotary.

Is the membership of a Rotarian transferable to the club of the city where he has been transferred by his company?

NO. There is no transferred membership in Rotary. Such a provision would trespass upon the autonomy of each club with regard to its selection of members and, in many instances, would result in a duplication of classification in violation of the principle of membership by classifications.

(NOTE) The above is an exact reproduction of the Cameron Rotary Club newspaper, the first issue of which was released on December 7.

No Religious Test Required

Article VII of the Constitution of the United States declares explicitly that "no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States." No one whose duty it is to administer an oath of office has any authority to inquire into the religious ideas of an elective officer or an appointee. This constitutional provision is not binding upon the states, however, and some constitutions and laws, notably in the South, require a state officer to affirm a belief in a supreme being.

Powder Magazine a Chapel

For many generations a French-Canadian regiment has garrisoned the $35,000,000 citadel on the heights above Quebec City. The ancient powder magazine is used as a chapel. In the officers' mess is a small brass cannon captured by British troops at Bunker Hill. Wolfe's troops captured this citadel and control of Canada—by defeating the French under Montcalm in 1759.

Irish Setter Native of Ireland

The Irish setter is a native of Ireland. It was first imported to America about 1875. It is believed to be a cross of English setter, spaniel and pointer. Originally red and white in coloring, and standards call for solid mahogany red or rich golden chestnut. It is essentially a gun dog. It is bold, hardy, yet of remarkably gentle nature and is noted for long life.

Invented Electrical Conveniences

About 1905 Dr. William Noe of San Francisco constructed the first portable vacuum cleaner. A washing machine with rotary motion was invented in 1859 by Hamilton E. Smith of Pittsburgh. A complete electric washing machine was patented by Alva J. Fisher, August ,9 1910.

How Sepia Is Made

Sepia is a dark-brown pigment obtained from the ink-sacs of cuttlefish. These are removed and dried to prevent putrefaction, then digested with dilute alkali, after which the solution is filtered and the color precipitated with dilute hydrochloric acid, washed, filtered and dried.

Dogfish Rank as Ancients

Among the fishes, dogfish rank as ancients. They are closely related to the gars and sturgeon, both bottom feeders and scavengers. The male dogfish may be distinguished from the female by a black spot, edged with yellowish to bright orange, found on the side of the fish, near the tail fin. This spot is faint or absent on the female.

Earth Mostly of Eight Elements

Eight elements—oxygen, silicon, aluminum, iron, calcium, sodium, potassium and magnesium—make up more than 98 per cent of the lithosphere, as the rocky crust of the earth down to a depth of 10 miles is called, says the American Chemical society.

The Street Called Straight

The street called Straight, in Damascus, is but half a mile in length. Here may be seen the site of the house of Judas, where the light of Christianity dawned upon Saul, later to become the great St. Paul. A mosque covers the site.

'How Do You Do?' Old

It isn't known definitely how the salutation "How do you do?" originated. According to Murray's dictionary an older form of this expression was "How do you?" This authority traces the inquiry back to 1563.

Effect of Rattlesnake Venom

Once rattlesnake venom begins circulating in the bloodstream, death soon follows. Unlike other poisons which affect only one organ, it cripples instantly everything it contacts, disintegrates the red corpuscles.

Ice Age Disappearing

The last Ice age, which began at least 30,000 years ago, is slowly disappearing, as the glaciers keep on melting; but in Antarctica enough ice remains to incase the entire earth in a layer 120 feet thick.

Back Slang Prevalent

The British Tommy in the war was addicted to back slang and used the word "mur" so often and constantly that many did not notice it was back slang for rum.

Ancient Headgear Survives

Two stylish hats of the Fourteenth century, when headgear began to appear, survive in the cap of the bishop and the skull cap of the circus clown.

Sunday's American Statesman, daily paper at Austin, carried a picture with write-up of the "St. Austin's Sodality Boys' choir taken at Newman Hall. In the crop appears the two sons, Boles and Paul Matocha, sons of Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Matocha. Mr. and Mrs. Matocha moved from Cameron a few years ago. Boles and Paul are native sons of Cameron and have many friends in Cameron.

Bob Burns Comes To Cameron Theatre In "Arkansas Traveler"

A devil-may-care wandering printer who unexpectedly takes over the editorship of a country newspaper to help a lady in distress is the central figure in the new Bob Burns picture. "The Arkansas Traveler," which Paramount will present next Sunday at the Cameron Theatre.

The itinerant printer, one of the most colorful figures to come to the screen in many seasons, is played, of course, by the sage of Van Buren, who now has his most serious role to date. He is suported by such noted players as Fay Bainter, John Beal, Jean Parker, Lyle Talbot, Dickie Moore, Porter Hall and that other top-notch American humorist, Irvin S. Cobb. The picture was directed by Alfred Santell, who delighted audiences this year with his "Cocoanut Grove" and "Having Wonderful Time."

"The Arkansas Traveler" marks the appearances of a new Bob Burns—minus the bozooka, musical comedy wise-cracks and cavartings which typed his early screen career. His new role— that of a lovable vagabond, homespun philosopher and crusading editor—most closely approaches the one he played last season in "Wells Fargo."

Burns' rollicking experiences as local sage and civic reformer reveal a colorful picture of small town American. After taking over the editorship of the paper to save its owner, Miss Bainter, from being ruined by crooked politicians, he wages a roaring war against the "big interests" with the help of the mayor's scapegrace son, Beal. When the desperate politicians seize his presses to save their necks, Burns caps a whirlwind political campaign by enlisting his "fellow-hoboes" to help him erect a radio station overnight!

Miss Bainter, one of the first ladies of the stage and screen, comes to "The Arkansas Traveler" from her triumphs in "Jezebel" and White Banners." Teamed with Burns for the first time, she will be seen as the widowed newspaper owner whose difficulties are solved when she places her affairs in the hands of "the Traveler."

A special message for you who plan to extend out-of-town Christmas Greetings by telephone...

The Telephone Company feels that many persons, who have been in the habit of calling out-of-town relatives and friends on Christmas Eve, would really prefer to extend their Christmas greetings on Christmas Day. For this reason, we are glad to call your attention to the fact that, again this year, the low night and Sunday Long Distance rates will be in effect all day Christmas.*

To take care of the increased volume of calls, our switchboards will be "manned" to capacity. Even so, there will likely be periods—especially on Christmas Eve—when it will be impossible to put through calls to a few distant cities with normal speed. If you should be one of those inconvenienced by delay, we ask your indulgence in advance.

Thank you—and a very Merry Christmas.

He Tries, Anyway!

WASHINGTON.—Each year since 1911 J. W. Hunefeld has donned his special red necktie and walked to the White House, hoping to shake hands with the President. He was successful until 1933 when President Hoover left town for the day. The next year President Roosevelt abandoned the New Year's handshaking altogether and Hunefeld hasn't seen the inside of the White House since. Here he is shown barred by the White House gates, still hoping that President Roosevelt will change his mind.

New Year's Eve Revelry Dates Back to Romans Who Really Celebrated!

New Year's eve may be a Roman holiday to Americans but it's nothing like the celebration tendered the new year by Romans themselves in the days of Caesar.

Long before the wassail bowl became an English institution and $5 floor show seats were invented, the hardy Romans of a past age were forced to pay even higher stakes to watch the old man with the scythe go into retirement.

It started as a celebration of the winter solstice. In old Rome it was Saturnalia, even as now. Then Caesar changed the calendar and delayed the opening of the new year a few days until the first of the month honoring Janus. He was a two-faced god who looked both forward and back.

In Rome during the empire the heads of the state exacted presents at New Year's. They got so greedy that Claudius finally set up a schedule to make it legal.

New Year's Eve Needn't Be Wild, Says Ex-Fighter

New Year's eve may be a time for celebration, but take it from Jack Dempsey—it's not a time for debauchery.

The former heavyweight champion and now New York restaurant operator sees no reason for young men and women to do a lot of heavy drinking just because everybody else seems to be doing it. They gain nothing by it.

"Lots of our young women customers," says Dempsey, "never order anything but ginger ale, orangeade or horse's necks."

A horse's neck, he explains, is made of ginger ale, ice and lemon. If made by people who know their business, it doesn't have any liquor in it at all.

The current season's New Year's eve celebrant will behave herself in the following fashion, says Mr. Dempsey:

She will stick to her own party and won't attract attention to herself by a lot of raucous laughter or loud talk. She'll make noise, because that's what New Year's is for, but she won't become obnoxiously boisterous.

As for being kissed at midnight, Jack says it's not necessarily a sign of affection, so why not?

Ointment Named in Bible Is Extracted from Shrub Native to United States

America shares with the Holy Land the small plant from which comes the oil that recalls to mind events of 19 centuries ago, when the glories of the first Christmas eve were revealed to shepherds on Bethlehem's hills.

From this plant, which abounds in Minnesota's north woods and other places in the United States, is taken spikenard, highly-perfumed ointment referred to in the King James version of the Bible as used to anoint the feet of Jesus.

So this small, unassuming plant played a small part in events which gave us Christmas, most cheerful holiday of nations.

Annual Consumption of Bread

There are eaten in this country annually about 10,000,000,000 loaves of bread. This is enough to encircle the earth at the equator 60 times, and would form a golden brown highway about 30 feet wide. And what easy riding it would be.—Food Industries.

Camera Daredevils Featured in Film At Cameron Theatre

With the unerring showmanship vision that has been responsible for several of the most entertaining and successful picture series, 20th Century-Fox has again directed its production talent and resources to the creation of a new series of action pictures, dramatizing the exploits of "The Camera Daredevils," the first of which, "Sharpshooters," comes to the Cameron Theatre, for the Preview Saturday.

The heroes of this new series are two devil-may-care newsreel photographers chasing danger 'round the world! And they're ready on a moment's notice to take their lives in their hands—or maybe a girl in their arms.

In the featured roles are Brian Donlevy, Lynn Bari and Wally Vernon. In "Sharpshooters," Donlevy is given full opportunity in the type of reckless romantic action role for which he is noted. Lynn Biar is seen as Brian's niftiest assignment, while Wally Vernon is cast as Waldo, the movie sound man. His hilarious comedy talents are given full play and provide an ideal foil for the reckless daring of the dynamic Donlevy.

The story of "Sharpshooters" opens on a high action note with Donlevy and Vernon in a clash with the gendarmes of a foreign principality where their resoursefulness wins them exclusive shots of the assassination of a monarch.

From then on the action is said to move with lightning speed through a series of advetures that catapults the Camera Daredevils in and out of trouble. Assigned to cover a coronation, they become involved with a band of conspirators who are plotting to kill the prince.

Inspired by their love of adventure and, incidentally, a beautiful girl who is governess to the young prince, they utilize their wit and talents in behalf of the king-to-be. What follows makes for an exciting and suspenseful story background for the exploits of the two intrepid cameramen and a picture that is heralded as a new entertainment thrill.

In addition to the three featured players, the picture has been importantly cast with such performers as John King, Douglas Dumbrille, C Henry Gordon and Sidney Blackmer.

The screen play was written by Robert Ellis and Helen Logan from an original story of Maurice Rapf and Lester Ziffren. It was directed by James Tinling under the supervision of executive producer Sol M. Wurtzel.

Dickens Story is Film Basis for "Christmas Carol"

A memento of Charles Dickens is today a highly prized treasure of Edwin L. Marin who directed Dickens' beloved Yuletide story, "A Christmas Carol," which comes to the Cameron Theatre screen Saturday with Reginald Owen as Scrooge and Terry Kilburn as Tiny Tim.

Sent to Marin by an English picture fan who was interested in the filmization of the Dickens story, the memento reveals the author's own explanation of why he wrote the story. It is in the form of a photostat of Dickens' handwriting in part of a letter, and was sent to the director by A. M. Jones of Manchester, England.

"I have endeavored," wrote Dickens, "to raise the ghost of an idea which will not put my readers out of humor with themselves, each other, with the season, or me. May it haunt their houses pleasantly."

The letter is dated 1843, having been written just after completion of the story which was first published in London in 1843 for the Christmas holidays.

"A Christmas Carol" faithfully follows Dickens' tale of the miserly Scrooge who is regenerated through the heart of Tiny Tim. Owen was given the role of Scrooge at the request of Lionel Barrymore who, unable to play the part because of illness, insisted that the picture be not postponed as he believed the world needed its message of "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men" more at the present time than any time in history.

Others in the cast include Gene and Kathleen Lockhart, Terry Kilburn, Barry Mackay, Lynne Carver, Leo G. Carroll, Lionel Braham, Ann Rutherford, D'Arcy Corrigan and Ronald Sinclair. The screen treatment of the story was written by Hugo Butler.

Fred Ford Sampson, who is employed with the Exide Battery Co., of New York, was a Cameron visitor on Friday afternoon. He is the son of Tom Sampson of Cameron.
